H-CUBE
MARKETING

THE CLARITY DIAGNOSTIC

A World-Class Dentist Running a Practice No One Can Find — and a Facebook Page That Says It Closed in 2020

I spent some time with Peak Dental Group's digital footprint this week. Here's what stood out.

Peak Dental Group — Nolanridge has built something real. Dr. Sameet Gill, your Founder and Clinical Director, was named Dentist of the Year in Canada and Young Dentist of the Year globally at the 2024 Forttuna Global Excellence Awards. The practice runs 7 days a week with Monday and Friday evening hours to 7 PM. The service menu — implants, All-on-4, Invisalign, cosmetic, emergency, pediatric through geriatric — matches what a top-tier NW Calgary clinic should offer.

> The clinical foundation is real. It's the discovery infrastructure that isn't working.

The problem is that none of this is visible to a patient searching for a dentist in NW Calgary. Peak Dental appears in zero of the five highest-value Google Maps searches — not for dentist, not for family dentist, not for cosmetic, not for implants, not for Invisalign. The Facebook page has displayed "Permanently Closed" since approximately 2020. There are 131 Google reviews after 10 years of operation, against a standard of 500+ — while nearby competitors Nolan Hill Dental and Sarcee Dental each sit above 1,000 reviews.

0 of 5

ORGANIC MAPS PACK APPEARANCES

Across all five highest-value NW Calgary dental searches

The cost of this gap compounds every month. Every patient who searches for "Calgary NW dental implants" or "Calgary NW cosmetic dentist" is finding a competitor instead. Every patient who checks Facebook before calling sees a business that no longer exists. And the paid advertising Peak Dental has started running is driving clicks into a system that isn't ready to convert them.

This audit lays out five findings, in order of impact, with the complete fix for each one spelled out.

How I See This

There's a pattern I see in dental practices that have been built by clinicians who are genuinely excellent at dentistry. The clinical operation matures. The team grows. The hours expand. The service menu deepens. And the marketing infrastructure — the systems that convert clinical excellence into patient discovery — stays at whatever minimal configuration it started with, because there's always something more pressing than the Google Business Profile.

> Peak Dental is paying to be found in the places it should rank for free — while the channels patients use to verify a practice say either 'closed' or 'generic dentist.'

That's roughly where Peak Dental is. The practice has an internationally recognized Clinical Director. It operates 7 days a week. It offers the full range of services that high-value patients are actively searching for. And it has recently started investing in paid Google Maps advertising to compensate for the organic visibility that isn't there yet.

The paid ad is not a bad decision — it's a reasonable response to a real visibility problem. But it's addressing the symptom, not the cause. The $77 Emergency Exam ad drives clicks; those clicks land on a contact form instead of a real-time booking system; some of those patients then verify the practice on Facebook and find a business that says it shut down six years ago. The ad spend is real. The conversion infrastructure isn't working.

131

GOOGLE REVIEWS AFTER 10 YEARS

Nolan Hill Dental, two kilometers away, has 1,061

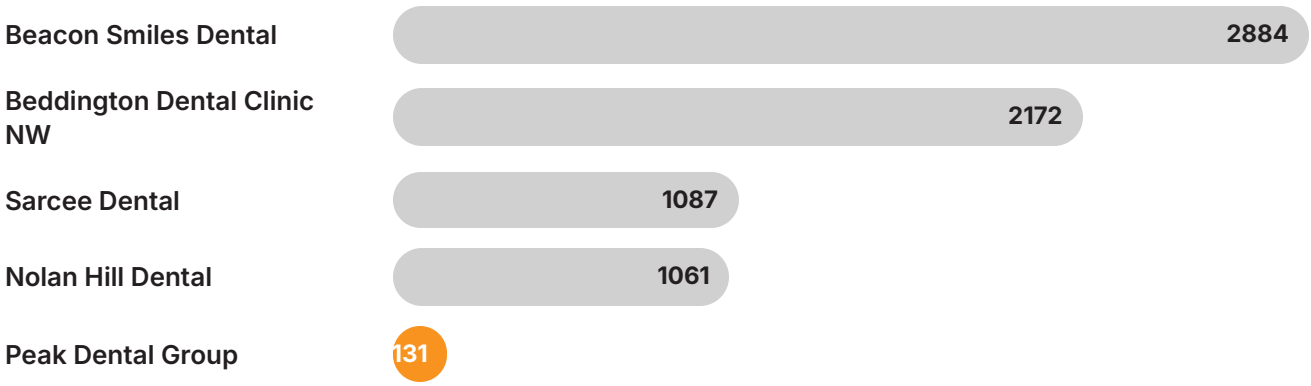
The five findings below are sequenced from root cause to downstream consequence. Finding 2 is the most urgent fix — it takes 30 minutes and can be done today. Finding 1 is the highest-leverage fix — it's structural, but it's the one that compounds in your favor rather than against you. The other three are medium-effort changes that produce disproportionate results once the root causes are addressed.

A note on the paid Maps ads: The Google Maps ad Peak Dental is currently running is not wasted spend — it produces impressions that would otherwise go to competitors. But paid presence is a rental. Organic Maps presence, built on review volume and GBP optimization, compounds over time and doesn't disappear when the budget does. The goal of this audit is to build the organic foundation — not to shut off the ads, but to make them unnecessary over time.

Finding 1

A DECADE OF PATIENTS — WITHOUT A SYSTEM TO TURN THEM INTO PROOF

I noticed that Peak Dental Group has 131 Google reviews after approximately 10 years in operation. The practice has a 4.7-star rating — patients who visit clearly like what they find. The three most recent reviews I saw were from January and February 2026, suggesting a current velocity of around 2–3 new reviews per month.



Google review counts, NW Calgary dental practices, April 2026

Why This Matters

26%

OF THE 500+ REVIEW STANDARD FOR A 10-YEAR PRACTICE

The portion accumulated without a solicitation system

The review count gap between Peak Dental and its nearest major competitors isn't a patient satisfaction problem — the 4.7-star rating rules that out. It's the gap you accumulate when a practice delivers excellent care without any mechanism to capture that experience in a form Google can see. Nolan Hill Dental, two kilometers from the Nolanridge location, has 1,061 reviews. Sarcee Dental has 1,087. Beacon Smiles Dental — the dominant NW Calgary practice by review authority — has 2,884. These practices are not better at dentistry. They have systems that turn every visit into digital proof.

Google's local ranking algorithm weights review volume and velocity heavily. A practice with 131 reviews accumulating at 2–3 per month will not appear organically in the Maps pack for any competitive NW Calgary search — and the research confirms this: zero for five across all service terms. For a practice offering dental implants and All-on-4, that Maps absence isn't an abstract SEO problem. Patients searching "Calgary NW dental implants" are ready to book high-value treatment. At one missed All-on-4 case per month at average case value, the annual exposure runs to $180,000–$420,000 in missed production — just from this search term alone.

> The patients are happy. The system just never asked them to say so.

Here's What I'd Do

Build the solicitation pipeline (weeks 1–2): Most practice management systems support post-appointment automation. Set up an SMS or email that goes out 2–4 hours after appointment completion — not immediately, not the next morning — with a single sentence and a direct link to your Google review form. Short message: "Thanks for coming in today — if you have a moment, we'd love a Google review: [link]." One step. No friction.

Train the front desk on a verbal ask (same week): The automation handles volume. The in-person ask handles patients who prefer it. One sentence from checkout: "We really appreciate feedback on Google — if you were happy today, it helps other families find us." No script pressure. Just a natural ask.

Respond to every review (ongoing): Google gives ranking credit for owner responses, and personalized responses signal to prospective patients that the practice actually reads what people write. Aim to respond within 48 hours of every new review. Reference something specific from the review — a name, a procedure, a detail — rather than a generic thank-you.

Effort: Structural — the highest-compounding action in this audit. Early velocity improvement within 30–60 days. Maps ranking movement within 60–90 days.

Finding 2

THE FACEBOOK PAGE HAS TOLD PATIENTS THE CLINIC IS CLOSED FOR SIX YEARS

I noticed that Peak Dental Group's Facebook page — facebook.com/p/Peak-Dental-Group-100069083925272/ — is currently listed as "Permanently Closed." Based on available evidence, this designation has been in place since approximately 2020. The practice has operated 7 days a week continuously for 10 years. The Facebook page has 11 followers.

> The practice is open every day of the week. Facebook says it shut down when the world went into lockdown — and has never been corrected.

Why This Matters

~6 years

DURATION OF THE "PERMANENTLY CLOSED" FACEBOOK STATUS

While the practice operated 7 days a week throughout

Every patient who receives a referral and checks Facebook before calling is told the practice no longer exists. Every patient who clicks the paid Maps ad, then verifies on Facebook — same result. Every existing patient who mentions Peak Dental to a friend, who then looks it up — same result. Referral chains break at this touchpoint silently, with no notification to the practice.

This isn't a reach gap or a missed engagement opportunity. It is active misdirection that has run for six years. The volume of lost patient opportunities is not measurable, but the mechanism is clear: anyone who touches this listing before calling is told not to bother.

Here's What I'd Do

This is the fastest fix in the audit. Here is the exact sequence:

Log into Facebook Business Manager → your Page → Page Settings → Page Info → find the operating status field → change from "Permanently Closed" to "Open" → update hours to match the current GBP listing → add a current profile photo (team photo or clinic exterior) → add a current cover image → confirm the address at 155 Nolanridge Ct NW #135 is accurate → save.

Total time: under 30 minutes. This can be done today, before any other fix in this audit.

The page doesn't need to become a content hub immediately. The minimum viable state is accurate status, accurate hours, a current photo so it doesn't look abandoned. Content strategy can follow. The status fix is urgent.

Effort: Quick win

Finding 3

GOOGLE CAN'T PLACE PEAK DENTAL FOR IMPLANTS, INVISALIGN, OR COSMETIC SEARCHES — BECAUSE THE GBP DOESN'T KNOW THEY OFFER THEM

I noticed that Peak Dental Group's Google Business Profile is categorized as "Dentist" — the generic default. I also noticed that Aesthetic Dental Studio NW Calgary, a competitor with 83 Google reviews, ranks organically for "Calgary NW cosmetic dentist." Peak Dental has 131 reviews, offers the same cosmetic services, and does not appear.

Why This Matters

4 of 5

SEARCHES WHERE NOSEHILL DENTAL (391 REVIEWS) RANKS ORGANICALLY

Peak Dental (131 reviews, 4.7★) ranks in 0 of 5

Nosehill Dental Centre — 4.6 stars, 391 reviews — appears organically in four of the five highest-value NW Calgary service searches. Peak Dental — 4.7 stars, 131 reviews — appears in none. The difference isn't patient satisfaction. It isn't primarily review volume. Nosehill doesn't hold a rating or count advantage over Peak Dental by any meaningful margin. The mechanism is GBP configuration.

When Google classifies a business for local search, GBP categories are among the primary ranking signals. A practice listed only as "Dentist" will not be surfaced for "cosmetic dentist" or "dental implants" queries — there's no category signal to match against. Adding "Cosmetic Dentist," "Dental Implants Provider," and "Invisalign Provider" as secondary categories gives Google what it needs to include the practice in service-specific results. This fix is faster-acting than any review volume improvement. Category changes can produce measurable Maps movement within 30 days.

> Aesthetic Dental Studio has 83 reviews and ranks for cosmetic searches. Peak Dental has 131 reviews and doesn't appear. That gap isn't about reviews.

Here's What I'd Do

GBP categories (30 minutes): Log into Google Business Profile → Edit Profile → Business Category. Keep "Dentist" as primary. Add secondary categories: "Cosmetic Dentist," "Dental Implants Provider," "Invisalign Provider," "Emergency Dental Service," "Pediatric Dentist." Each secondary category expands the range of service searches the practice can appear for.

GBP description (1–2 hours): Write a 750-character description that leads with the practice's differentiators. Example opening: "Peak Dental Group is an award-winning NW Calgary dental clinic led by Dr. Sameet Gill, DMD MBA — named Dentist of the Year in Canada and Young Dentist of the Year globally at the 2024 Forttuna Global Excellence Awards. We provide dental implants, All-on-4, Invisalign, cosmetic dentistry, and full-family care — 7 days a week, with evening hours Monday and Friday." Pack in service keywords naturally. Google reads this description as a ranking signal.

GBP posts (monthly): The April 22 post about Denture Implants is a good start — keep the cadence going. The next post should be about Dr. Gill's award: a photo, a short description of the recognition, a link to book. Active posting signals to Google that the listing is maintained, which factors into ranking. One post per month is the floor. Two to three is better.

Effort: Medium

Finding 4

THE PRACTICE IS OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK — BUT CAN'T CAPTURE A PATIENT WHO FINDS THEM AT 8 PM SATURDAY

I noticed that Peak Dental Group's website offers a "Request Appointment" button that links to a contact form — not a real-time scheduling system. No self-scheduling platform was found on the site. The practice operates Monday through Sunday with evening hours Monday and Friday to 7 PM.

> The practice has built physical availability that exceeds most competitors. The digital booking infrastructure doesn't match it.

Why This Matters

7 days

THE PRACTICE IS PHYSICALLY OPEN

0 hours — A patient can self-schedule outside staffed hours

Most NW Calgary dental practices are closed Sundays. Many close by 5 PM on weekdays. Peak Dental's 7-day access, with extended Monday and Friday evening hours, is a genuine differentiator — the kind of availability working families and emergency patients specifically search for. It is an underused marketing asset.

But the patient who discovers Peak Dental at 8 PM Saturday — through a Google search, a recommendation, or a paid ad click — cannot act on that discovery. They submit a form and wait for a callback the next business day. If they're in enough pain or urgency to search on a Saturday evening, they're comparing options. Any competitor with a live booking button gets the appointment.

The current configuration creates a clean mismatch: the practice is operationally available when patients most need access, and digitally unavailable for booking during those same windows. The paid Maps ad sharpens this further — ad spend driving clicks that land on a form instead of a scheduling flow reduces the ROI of every paid-visibility dollar.

Here's What I'd Do

Select a booking platform (week 1): Jane App is the most widely used real-time booking platform in Canadian dental. It integrates with most Canadian practice management systems and supports online booking, appointment reminders, and patient intake. Alternatives include NexHealth and Dentrix Online Booking. Evaluate based on your current practice management system's integration options.

Configure and launch (weeks 2–4): Set up appointment types, time slots, and provider availability. Build in a brief intake form so the team has context before each appointment. Test the full booking flow on mobile — most patients booking after hours are on phones. Confirm the experience is fast and frictionless.

Update every touchpoint: Replace "Request Appointment" contact form links with the live booking URL. Add the booking link to the GBP profile (Google Business Profile supports a direct booking link field). Add it to Instagram bio and Facebook page once corrected per Finding 2. Goal: one click from discovery to booked appointment, regardless of channel or time.

Effort: Medium — 2–4 weeks to implement correctly. Return is immediate once live.

Finding 5

AN INTERNATIONALLY AWARD-WINNING CLINICAL DIRECTOR WHOSE CREDENTIALS DON'T APPEAR IN ANY DISCOVERY CHANNEL

I noticed that Dr. Sameet Gill — Founder and Clinical Director of Peak Dental Group — was named Dentist of the Year in Canada and Young Dentist of the Year globally at the 2024 Forttuna Global Excellence Awards. I also noticed that this credential appears on an interior page of the practice website and nowhere else in any discovery channel.

> No other dental practice in NW Calgary holds this credential. It's sitting on a team page.

Why This Matters

0

DISCOVERY CHANNELS SURFACING DR. GILL'S 2024 DENTIST OF THE YEAR AWARD

GBP description, Maps listing, homepage hero, paid ad copy, social content: all blank

The credential exists. The distribution doesn't.

Trust is established before the first call. A patient comparing two practices in Google Maps makes a judgment from what they can see — review count, star rating, category, description, photos. Peak Dental currently presents as "4.7 stars, 131 reviews, Dentist." Nolan Hill Dental presents as "4.9 stars, 1,061 reviews, Dentist." Without other signals, Nolan Hill looks more established.

Now imagine if Peak Dental's listing read: "Led by Dr. Sameet Gill — named Dentist of the Year in Canada in 2024." That credential doesn't need explanation. A patient doesn't need to understand the award body or the selection process. "Dentist of the Year in Canada" is a sentence that ends the comparison. No other NW Calgary dental practice holds an equivalent nationally or globally recognized credential. This is a differentiator with zero local competition — and it is currently invisible to every patient who finds this practice through any digital channel.

Here's What I'd Do

Today — GBP description: Add "Led by Dr. Sameet Gill, DMD MBA — named Dentist of the Year in Canada and Young Dentist of the Year globally at the 2024 Forttuna Global Excellence Awards" to the first line of the GBP description. This is the single most valuable sentence this practice can put in front of new patients on Google.

This week — GBP post: Publish a GBP post featuring Dr. Gill's photo and the award recognition. Keep it brief: the recognition, what it means for patients, a link to book. A photo of Dr. Gill in the clinic makes it real.

This week — homepage update: Add the award credential to the homepage hero or the first section below it. Every visitor who arrives from any channel — paid ad, Maps click, direct search — should see this credential within the first scroll.

This month — social content: One LinkedIn post, one Instagram post. This is the kind of content that gets shared by colleagues, patients, and referring professionals. The credential does the work — it doesn't need elaborate production.

Effort: Medium — one afternoon of focused content work. The credential is real. The fix is distribution.

Other Things I Noticed

The same-complex competitor is smaller — for now. Nolan Ridge Dental operates at 255 Nolanridge Ct NW — the same complex as Peak Dental. They have 113 Google reviews to Peak Dental's 131 and a 4.7-star rating. Right now Peak Dental holds the review advantage in their own building. That gap erodes if Peak Dental doesn't build a solicitation system and Nolan Ridge does. Worth watching monthly.

Paid Maps ads without organic foundation is a cost with a ceiling. The $77 Emergency Exam campaign is a reasonable short-term tactic. But paid presence is rented visibility — it disappears when the budget does. The organic systems described in Findings 1 and 3 create compounding visibility that increases over time and eventually makes the ad spend optional rather than structural. The goal is to build toward that transition, not depend on paid ads indefinitely.

The 4.7-star rating is an asset, not a liability. In a competitive Maps pack where most practices cluster at 4.8–4.9, the gap is small enough that volume and GBP optimization will matter more than the star rating itself. As reviews accumulate, the rating may improve naturally. Responding to every review — especially any critical ones — signals active engagement that prospective patients notice and Google credits.

Women-owned and LGBTQ+ friendly signals are in the GBP but not on the website. These designations exist in the GBP listing, where some patients will see them. They should also appear on the website — on the homepage or About page, briefly and matter-of-factly. Some patients specifically filter for practices with these designations, and a website mention makes the signal findable regardless of how the patient arrives.

How I'd Sequence the Fixes

This week

- Change Facebook status from "Permanently Closed" to "Open" — update hours, add a current photo (Finding 2, 30 minutes)
- Add service-specific GBP categories: Cosmetic Dentist, Dental Implants Provider, Invisalign Provider, Emergency Dental Service, Pediatric Dentist (Finding 3, 30 minutes)
- Add Dr. Gill's award to the GBP description first sentence (Finding 3 + 5, 1 hour)
- Publish a GBP post featuring Dr. Gill's 2024 award with a photo (Finding 5, 30 minutes)

Next 30 days

- Select and begin implementing a real-time booking platform (Finding 4)
- Update homepage to surface Dr. Gill's award above the fold (Finding 5)
- Implement review solicitation automation — post-appointment SMS or email with direct Google review link (Finding 1)

- Train front desk on verbal review ask at checkout (Finding 1)
- Publish monthly GBP posts — service spotlights, team, patient education (Finding 3)

30–90 days

- Launch online booking and update all touchpoints — website, GBP, paid ad landing pages (Finding 4)
- Monitor review velocity weekly — target 5+ new reviews/month within 60 days, 8–10/month within 90 days (Finding 1)
- Publish social content featuring Dr. Gill's award and practice differentiators on Instagram and LinkedIn (Finding 5)
- Add women-owned and LGBTQ+ friendly designations to website homepage or About page (Other Things)
- Review GBP category performance — check which service searches have begun showing movement (Finding 3)

Ongoing

- Maintain review solicitation pipeline — the highest-compounding action in the audit (Finding 1)
- Respond to every Google review, personalized within 48 hours (Finding 1)
- Post to GBP monthly at minimum — service education, team, patient outcomes (Finding 3)
- Monitor Nolan Ridge Dental's review count monthly — protect the in-complex review advantage (Other Things)
- Evaluate paid Maps ad spend quarterly — as organic presence builds, assess whether budget can shift or reduce (Cross-cutting)

The Next Step

Everything in this audit is yours to implement. The fixes are spelled out, in order of impact. Most practices won't get to them — not because they don't matter, but because there's never time. If you'd rather have someone run them for you, the Clarity Audit is the next step. We'll go deeper on the things that need it, prioritize against your specific goals, and give you a 90-day plan you can hand off. No pressure either way — the audit you're holding is the audit, not the appetizer.

Trent Wehrhahn H-Cube Marketing trent@hcubemarketing.com hcubemarketing.com

Other Things I Noticed

The same-complex competitor is smaller — for now. Nolan Ridge Dental operates at 255 Nolanridge Ct NW — the same complex as Peak Dental. They have 113 Google reviews to Peak Dental's 131 and a 4.7-star rating. Right now Peak Dental holds the review advantage in their own building. That gap erodes if Peak Dental doesn't build a solicitation system and Nolan Ridge does. Worth watching monthly.

Paid Maps ads without organic foundation is a cost with a ceiling. The $77 Emergency Exam campaign is a reasonable short-term tactic. But paid presence is rented visibility — it disappears when the budget does. The organic systems described in Findings 1 and 3 create compounding visibility that increases over time and eventually makes the ad spend optional rather than structural. The goal is to build toward that transition, not depend on paid ads indefinitely.

The 4.7-star rating is an asset, not a liability. In a competitive Maps pack where most practices cluster at 4.8–4.9, the gap is small enough that volume and GBP optimization will matter more than the star rating itself. As reviews accumulate, the rating may improve naturally. Responding to every review — especially any critical ones — signals active engagement that prospective patients notice and Google credits.

Women-owned and LGBTQ+ friendly signals are in the GBP but not on the website. These designations exist in the GBP listing, where some patients will see them. They should also appear on the website — on the homepage or About page, briefly and matter-of-factly. Some patients specifically filter for practices with these designations, and a website mention makes the signal findable regardless of how the patient arrives.

How I'd Sequence the Fixes

This week

- Change Facebook status from "Permanently Closed" to "Open" — update hours, add a current photo (Finding 2, 30 minutes)
- Add service-specific GBP categories: Cosmetic Dentist, Dental Implants Provider, Invisalign Provider, Emergency Dental Service, Pediatric Dentist (Finding 3, 30 minutes)
- Add Dr. Gill's award to the GBP description first sentence (Finding 3 + 5, 1 hour)
- Publish a GBP post featuring Dr. Gill's 2024 award with a photo (Finding 5, 30 minutes)

Next 30 days

- Select and begin implementing a real-time booking platform (Finding 4)
- Update homepage to surface Dr. Gill's award above the fold (Finding 5)
- Implement review solicitation automation — post-appointment SMS or email with direct Google review link (Finding 1)
- Train front desk on verbal review ask at checkout (Finding 1)
- Publish monthly GBP posts — service spotlights, team, patient education (Finding 3)

30–90 days

- Launch online booking and update all touchpoints — website, GBP, paid ad landing pages (Finding 4)
- Monitor review velocity weekly — target 5+ new reviews/month within 60 days, 8–10/month within 90 days (Finding 1)
- Publish social content featuring Dr. Gill's award and practice differentiators on Instagram and LinkedIn (Finding 5)
- Add women-owned and LGBTQ+ friendly designations to website homepage or About page (Other Things)
- Review GBP category performance — check which service searches have begun showing movement (Finding 3)

Ongoing

- Maintain review solicitation pipeline — the highest-compounding action in the audit (Finding 1)
- Respond to every Google review, personalized within 48 hours (Finding 1)
- Post to GBP monthly at minimum — service education, team, patient outcomes (Finding 3)
- Monitor Nolan Ridge Dental's review count monthly — protect the in-complex review advantage (Other Things)
- Evaluate paid Maps ad spend quarterly — as organic presence builds, assess whether budget can shift or reduce (Cross-cutting)

The Next Step

> Everything in this audit is yours to implement. The fixes are spelled out, in order of impact. Most practices won't get to them — not because they don't matter, but because there's never time. If you'd rather have someone run them for you, the Clarity Audit is the next step. We'll go deeper on the things that need it, prioritize against your specific goals, and give you a 90-day plan you can hand off. No pressure either way — the audit you're holding is the audit, not the appetizer.

Book the Clarity Audit

Trent Wehrhahn
H-Cube Marketing

trent@hcubemarketing.com
hcubemarketing.com